

Anderson's Wear-Easy Shoe.....

is a shoe made especially for farm use and that will wear "as easy as an old shoe" right from the start. A shoe in which there is not a peg or nail or thread to touch the bottom of the foot. A shoe that is almost as soft and flexible as a lady's hand turned. A shoe with a pure white oak innersole that is cooling to the bottom of the foot; all other every day shoes are made with cheap acid tanned red leather innersoles that burn, scald and blister the feet so badly in hot weather. A shoe that will give more comfort for general farm use than any shoe that has ever been gotten up.

We keep this shoe in Buckle and Congress & the price is $1.50

RAILROADS WIN.

The Long and Short Haul Cases Decided In Their Favor.

Louisville, Ky., June 29.—The railroad commission has decided in favor of the railroads in the long and short haul cases.

The decision is in effect that wherever the maintenance of the same rate for long and short hauls operates so as to make it impossible for Kentucky industries and products to compete with those of other States the railroads will be allowed to maintain lower rates for the long haul. The decision also exonerates the Illinois Central from the operation of the Court of Appeals ruling so far as it applies to the Elizabeth town cases. The decision of the Court of Appeals upheld the long and short haul regulations.

THE NEW AMERICA

America! Inspiring theme!
Immortal goddess crowned
With jewels brought from every stream,
Thine songs the world around.

'Gainst foreign foe thy sturdy sons
Have never known defeat;
And North and South, behold their guns
Stacked at the Nation's fester!

Thy eldest, born at Bunker Hill,
With flowing locks of gray
Stood stern beside the youth of will
At Santiago bay.

"Fourth of July" out o'er the main
The Union liners roared,
"For liberty make way!" again
The song to heaven soared.

Swift onward to the farthest shore
The grateful message ran,
While all the world bowed low before
The true American.

"I fight to free my brother brave,"
Said Washington, "And I,
To free my brother who is slave,"
Was Lincoln's loftier cry.

But loftier still from Cuban coast
The blessed challenge rose;
"We fight that strangers may be free,
All tyrants are our foes!"

And onward still to every clime,
Where'er a river runs
That cars may sweep in martial time,
Shall go our men and guns.

While over them shall break and float
The banner of the free,
Till all the sons of earth shall vote
It full supremacy.

Then shall the heaven-born symbol hold
No hint of fear or sigh,
But only God's great promise told
To man from Sinai.

CHARLES EUGENE BANKS.

THE CAPTAIN'S FOURTH

A Story of 1890
By T. C. HARBAUGH

APT. CHEEVERS, of the gallant —, the invalid house from his bed, sat on the porch of the old home with a newspaper in his hand. His hand some face, turned by service under a tropic sun, revealed traces of physical suffering, and as he looked across the stretch of lovely country beyond the stately elms which stood so long before the old-fashioned house, his thoughts went back to the days when, as a boy, he played there and life was full of careless joy.

The paper, blown by a little skirt of wind, tipped from his thin hands and fell at his feet. He did not soon pick it up, but let it lie where it had fluttered. Presently from the village just beyond the hill came the echoes of a cannon's boom and he lay for a moment, lighted up as he remembered that it was the nation's holiday, and he thought of the Fourth the years had carried out to sea.

The door behind him opened so softly that he did not hear it, and the footsteps which came, gaily, to his chair. When he looked up it was to gaze into the face of a fair girl whose hand had fallen lightly upon his knee.

"You remember you asked about Tracy yesterday?" said the young maid.

"Oh, yes—Tracy Wordsworth," said the captain. "I had forgotten—almost."

Did the young girl believe the captain? She seemed to smile and for a moment her gaze wandered from him.

"I have just found one of her letters—one she wrote me last winter."

"Ah?"

"The last one I got from her, I believe. She mentions you in it."

The captain grew interested.

"I went to Manila last summer, you know, Harriet. Tracy, ah, yes, I knew her when I came back from school, and the family moved away shortly after that—"

The captain's companion was opening a letter with her dainty fingers and, strange to say, he was watching her.

"Tracy thought she might come back this summer," continued the girl. She had heard somehow that they were away and wished you a safe return."

"That's clever. I thought she had forgotten me."

"Not quite, as it seems. She never quite forgets her friends, but—"

The captain waited for the completion of the sentence, but it was not finished.

"You are not going over to Hampton today, I believe?" suddenly asked Harriet.

"I believe I will. It is the Fourth, you know, and I had promised Jackson that I would help him celebrate it in old style."

"If you keep out of the sun you will enjoy it. I'm doctor now, you see," and the speaker laughed. "I will order out the carriage while you make your toilet," and the fair face vanished and the captain was alone again.

"That was queer," he said to himself, as he looked at the newspaper again from his feet. "I was thinking about Tracy myself and—"

There's a minute of time in a day, and the family knew that a momentary never did, and he used to be glad at impromptu speeches, too. The thought of Jackson, who had taken his station alongside the carriage for the purpose of conversing with her, Judge Somers made a rambling, but interesting, patriotic address to which the large audience listened with unfeigned impatience, for all knew that Capt. Chevers, just home from Manila, would have something to say and a living leap is better than a dead lion at any time.

By and by the mayor of the village rose and said, as he waved his hand toward the captain.

Ladies and Gentlemen: We have with us today one of the heroes of the late war with Spain, a gallant citizen whom you all know so well who brought under the banners of Dever and who was the first to plant Old Glory upon the ramparts of the enemy. We love to honor our heroes, and this one, whom Hampton is proud to call her own because his boyhood days were spent in this vicinity, we greet with a double welcome upon this auspicious occasion. Ladies and gentlemen, Capt. Harold Chevers, the hero of Manila!

The speaker that sacred skyward would have called hushes to the cheek of an admiral, and the captain's face crimsoned as he arose, which was a signal for more cheering.

He never knew how he started; for a moment he was at a loss for words, then, as suddenly he began to tell the story of Manila, modestly omitting an account of his own bravery. It was a story that thrilled every one, and when he closed with a splendid peroration which was in fact an apostrophe to the American flag, the enthusiasm of the crowd was unbounded.

As he settled back in the chair he heard the master of ceremonies announce that "Miss Wordsworth from the west" would sing the "Star-Spangled Banner."

Capt. Chevers started at the name and leaned forward as a tall, regal-looking girl advanced from one end of the platform and stood before the people. He could not see her face, for it was slightly turned away, and then he settled back as her musical voice began the national anthem.

The crowd seemed to stand spellbound. Such singing was a revelation to every one who listened; never before had the words of the immortal anthem thrilled them so, and no one stirred until the last word had died upon her lips.

"Tracy—Miss Wordsworth!" he exclaimed. "What a fool I am, anyhow. He faltered, sotto voce. "Is another Tracy?"

But the tall girl had turned, and she said the hero of Manila stood face to face.

"I—I want to thank you for your singing, Tracy—pardon me, Miss Wordsworth," said the stammering captain. "It was superb, matchless. You used to sing so well at Locksbrook school, you know, when we—"

"Thank you, Capt. Chevers," interrupted the girl. She held out her hand. "You don't mind, I have forgotten those days, I hope?"

"Not at all; but you see I did not remain long at the school while I have thought of those of those happy times, I had quite lost sight of you."

The recollections of the platform were now coming back to him, as the song was the last feature of the programme, and Capt. Chevers escorted Miss Wordsworth to the carriage.

"I see you're captured another prisoner, captain," laughed Graham, cavalierly.

"Was it an unconditional surrender?"

Both the captain and Tracy blushed and Harriet diplomatically came to the rescue of both by welcoming her friend, Tracy, in the guest room.

"I guess you're glad I added you to the programme, eh, captain?" the irrepressible Jackson broke in. "It's a great Fourth for you, imagine. And you came, eh? Well, good day and good luck!"

In the excitement attendant on the pole raising Capt. Chevers did not participate, as Jackson remarked to a friend, he had embarked upon "another campaign," and "Cousin Harriet" seemed to be furnishing a good deal of the ammunition.

When the events of the day were over and the star-spangled banner floated from the top of the tallest liberty pole in Miami county, Capt. Chevers drove home, with Miss Wordsworth as Cousin Harriet's guest.

Everything is pleasant at Orchard Knob, and the reader will not be surprised when he learns that Tracy Wordsworth has decided to prolong her stay among friends in the east, so that Capt. Chevers is looking forward to a happy summer which he owes from the last "glorious Fourth of July."

HISTORICAL OLD TIME

Johny—Did yer enjoy dis Fourth, Willy? Willy—You bet. I only had two blisters on dis foot, but I was so glad I got dis fingers blowed off—Philadelphia Press.

What a Firecracker Did

OMORROW, being Fourth of July, and Carroll Graham's hired man, of course it's a holiday.

"A holiday," nodded his young employer.

"Some friends of mine are coming over to celebrate."

"Very well—only, Jim, keep most of your time as far away from the farm as you can."

"What's up?"

"I wonder!" mused Honest Jim, staring.

"Come crying right, put out all in Chester good as his, and him like as indigo!"

"Hey—I can tell!"

Jem turned to face one of his fellow celebrators of the morrow.

"Can you?" challenged Jem.

"Yes. They say Graham has lost the farm—hitch in the puerdian—a missing paper."

"Sho!" gasped Jem.

"They say that party Nellie Mason's rich father has started down that big foot of his, and no pauper shall wed his girl! If Graham can't produce a suttin document the farm passes to that miserly half-uncle of his!"

"The world's coming to an end!" gasped Jem.

It was true; like a bolt from the blue there had come to the ambitious young farmer a shock that thrilled the most timid.

In a flash one of life's brightest pictures seemed blotted out.

The accredited owner of Spring farm was informed that a large claim had been set up by his half-uncle, supposed to have been paid years since—Graham had vainly searched for written proof of its settlement.

"That's why he won't celebrate no Fourth of July this year," observed Jem's informant, departing. "He's got to waste, and start life all over again on nothin'!"

"Poor lad!" sighed Jem. "Dra't the stuff, I've no heart in me!" and he drew from his pocket a two-pound package of "celebrating" powder. "Where shall I stow it?"

It's risky stuff to have about the premises."

Jem moved a ladder to an old unused tool-house, ascended, and pushed the package of gunpowder up under the eaves. Through gnawing cracks in the shingles he saw it rest on a board directly under.

"Safe till morning," he murmured. "Hum! I've left it chump in the chimney, instead of celebrating, thinking over my sins—and that pesky half-uncle's, also! Pleasant opinion—no!—solving fox, and Graham's being cheated out of home, gal and happiness!"

Boom!

Thus a distant cannon—Fourth of July had come!

That was nearer—Fourth of July seemed right at the door of Spring farm.

The house shook. At the resounding explosion, Jem hurried outside, to join Carroll Graham.

A State Convention of the prohibition party will be held in Louisville August 1 and 2.

It is about time for the Louisville Dispatch to either shut up or shut down.

The "Boy wanted" jokes applied to the late G. Cleveland a few years ago, are now being used on the Czar of Russia.

The Marion Gazette, the paper that discovered Judge Pratt as a gubernatorial candidate, has suspended publication.

May Hempstead was again beaten at Sheephead Bay Saturday by Admiration, losing a purse of $5,400 and a side bet of $5,000. She came in three lengths behind.

The Czar of Russia is suffering from his third disappointment in his desire for a male heir to the throne, which no female can occupy. His three children are all girls.

In spite of the increased tax burden of the people, the government deficit for the fiscal year is $88,875,689. The Republican party will have much to explain in 1900.

A thirteen-year-old boy, near Athens, Ga., who a few months ago killed his father and escaped prosecution for lack of evidence, has since murdered his sister and mother and fled.

C. C. Moore, editor of the Bluegrass Blade, who was sent to the Ohio federal penitentiary for printing obscene matter in his paper and sending it through the mails, has served out his term and was released Saturday.

"Bred In Old Kentucky" is the title of a new play by Ed Risley, the scene of which is laid in the Kentucky mountains. It was put on the boards in Louisville last week, Miss Eugenia Webb taking the leading character. The author is a Louisville boy.

The Courier-Journal and Times very promptly placed the Democratic roster at the head of their editorial columns and are giving a hearty support to the entire ticket, nominated on a platform endorsing free silver, Wm. J. Bryan and Joe Blackburn.

Senator Geo. S. Fulton, a Goebel man who found himself in a Hardin district, was one of the members of the Executive Committee who failed to be re-elected. He retires from the Committee with the good opinion of all his associates and a record of faithful party service. Ben Ringo, his successor, is in every way worthy of the honor bestowed upon him.

The Messenger endeavors at all times to be careful of its facts, but its recent statement that Mr. Goebel was the author of the section in the new constitution that prohibits the consolidation of competing lines of railroads, it is now advised, was not true. That honor belongs to Hon. J. D. Clardy, of Christian county, and it is in entire keeping with the public record of the gentleman who for two terms, after his service in the constitutional convention made such an admirable record as a member of congress from the Second District.—Owensboro Messenger.

The Louisville Post quotes W. C. Owens as follows:

"I shall vote the straight Republican ticket this fall, and every frank and candid influence will do the same. I shall in this way disapprove of the force, fraud and robbery of the Louisville convention." Owens was a bolter in 1896 and really had no business in the convention. This view of the matter was taken by the convention, and the Scott county delegation headed by Owens was unseated. Hence the cry of "fraud."

The welcome accorded Judge Breckinridge on his return home from Louisville, yesterday, was a fitting climax to his magnificent and successful race for the Attorney Generalship. It attested the popularity of his nomination and was a demonstration that evidenced the intention of his homepeople to stand by him and through the efforts of a united party to make complete the honor that the Democracy of his state has bestowed upon him.—Danville Advocate.

The insurance companies have reached a point where they cannot resume business in Missouri until they lower their rates. On the other hand the companies, since the Appellate Court decision, boldly announce their purpose to form in Louisville one immense combine, embracing all of the agencies worth speaking of. Missouri may be called upon to tell the next Kentucky Legislature how she did it.

Allowing a hundred or two votes to "cover accidents," Torney Gin' Bill Taylor now has enough instructed votes to secure the Republican nomination for Governor on the first ballot in the convention at Lexington July 12. To those who have never "heard or read of" Taylor it is only necessary to add that he is not quite as great a statesman as Broncho Franks.

Thirteen was not an unlucky number in Senator Goebel's case. He was nominated on the 26th ballot—two thirds—and received 501 votes, the figures and fraction added together, making the number 13. Furthermore the committees that passed upon the contests, gave him the organization and endorsed the Goebel bill each had just 13 members.

Gus Coulter has reason to feel proud of his race for auditor. He got nearly 700 votes, more than were cast for any other candidate for any office. And that too in the face of the fact that his opponent on the last ballot was one of the best and most popular young Democrats in the State.

Another severe storm has occurred in Texas. A number of lives have been lost near Calvert, and five bodies have been recovered. Railroad bridges at both ends of the town were swept away by the flood. A great many people are destitute.

R. E. Richardson, Democrat, of Hart and L. J. Owen, Populist, of Grayson, members of the last Legislature, have been renominated.

PRESS MEETING.

A Boat Excursion One of The Pleasant Features.

Chairman C. F. Kleiderer, of the Business Men's Association committee on reception and entertainment of the Kentucky Press Association, returned home last night and at once addressed himself to the task of completing arrangements for the excursion supper and concert which will be given on the evening of Tuesday, July 11. In pursuance of this purpose Mr. Kleiderer will call a meeting of the full committee for Monday morning, when he will lay before it the programme that the Business Men's Association authorized him to prepare.

The steamer Jewel has been chartered, and the contest calls for a trip to Green river and return, with the entire body of visitors, committees and special guests. A first-class band has been engaged and supper ordered, and the visiting journalists will undoubtedly be agreeably occupied and entertained from the time they embark until they return to the wharbo at Henderson. The Jewel has ample accommodation for 250 passengers, but Mr. Kleiderer does not expect more than 100 members of the association to attend, though the arrangements for entertainments will be of an elastic character and all who come will be hospitably cared for.—Henderson Journal.

VOLUNTEERS.

Wanted For Service in the War of Conquest.

Washington, June 29.—The first volunteers to be raised for service in the Philippines will be those of the skeleton regiments now being formed by Gen. Otis. It is not believed there will be the least difficulty in obtaining these men. It is probable that some time will elapse before the troops of the provisional army are sent to Manila, but meanwhile they will be drilled and taught marksmanship in camp. It is estimated that three months are required to make soldiers of new recruits. It is learned at the War Department that there is no actual rush to get the new organizations to Gen. Otis at the present time. The rainy season having set in, it is not believed that these troops will be necessary for service except to relieve those who had been on active duty.

The transport service is said to be sufficient, though ships may be chartered temporarily if needed. The announcement that a portion of the provisional army was to be raised has caused a swarm of politicians to be sent to the war Department by those who are seeking commissions in the new regiments.

CARRETT NAMED.

The Princeton Banker Appointed Bank Examiner to Succeed Escott.

Washington, June 30.—Mr. Robert D. Garrott, of Princeton, has been appointed Bank Examiner for the State of Kentucky to succeed Mr. Escott, who resigned. Mr. Garrott arrived last night and after an interview with the Controller this morning, was promised the post.

The total yield of wheat for the present year is variously estimated from 400,000,000 to 575,000,000 bushels, but the consensus of opinion of the most authentic statisticians places the production not above 550,000,000, which is a decrease, as compared with last year of 125,000,000 bushels.

LIKES THE TICKET.

Dr. Clardy Says the Ticket Is the Best that Could Have Been Named.

Hon. J. D. Clardy was in town yesterday and expressed much satisfaction over the Democratic ticket. Said he:

"I would have preferred to see our neighbor Capt. Stone nominated for Governor, but Mr. Goebel is a strong man and has a record above suspicion. I served with him in the constitutional convention and he always voted on the right side. He is young, able and honest and if elected, as he will be, will be Governor in name and fact. The ticket as a whole is made up of good clean men, representing all sections of the State, and combines every possible element of strength. Col. Nall will make the best agricultural commissioner the State has ever had, and I am especially gratified that he secured the nomination."

What among human ills are more annoying than piles? The afflictions that prevent active exercise are bad enough, but one that makes even rest miserable is worse. Women are among its greatest victims. TABLER'S HUCKEY PILE OINTMENT will cure the most obstinate cases. Price, 50 cts. in bottle, tubes 75c. Sold by R. C. HARDWICK.

A Money Finder.

Col. W. T. Kirkman of this city, is not only a water witch, but a money witch as well. Three weeks ago Mr. Bailey Wright, a farmer near Claymour, lost while plowing, his purse, containing $5 in silver. Knowing the ability of Col. Kirkman to locate he sought him. The colonel took his rod, went to the field and in a little while kicked up the buried purse containing the $5. Mr. Wright divided the prize with the colonel and all are happy. Col. Kirkman will verify this statement.—Elkton Progress.

Imperfect digestions and assimilation produce disordered conditions of the system, which grow and are confirmed by neglect. HERBINE gives tone to the stomach, and causes good digestions. Price 50 cts. Sold by R. C. HARDWICK.

Merritt Farm Sold.

In the case of V. A. Merritt's administrator and others against Sam'l Bruff and others, Master Commissioner Rives on yesterday sold 132 1/2 acres of land, near Benningtown, for $1,225. Messrs. W. J. McGee and J. M. Miles were the purchasers.

To eradicate worms from the system give the child plain nourishing food and WHITE'S CREAM VERMIFUGE. The result will be, the worms will disappear and the child become healthy and cheerful. Price 25 cts. Sold by R. C. HARDWICK.

Kentucky Prohibitionists.

The Prohibition State Convention will be held in Louisville on August 1 and 2. The convention will probably be held in Music Hall, where the Democrats held their sessions. National Chairman Dickey, of Detroit, Mich., will preside. A full state ticket will be named. Anyone who will agree to the nominee will be given a voice in the convention.

How Old She Looks

Poor clothes cannot make you look old. Even pale cheeks won't do it. One thing does it, and never fails. It is impossible to look young with the color of seventy years in your hair.

AS TO STREET NUMBERS.

Any Attempt to Change The System Unauthorised.

The statement in a local paper that a party from another city claims to have numbered the city of Hopkinsville on a system of his own, with the intention of getting out a directory, makes it necessary to warn the public that the proposed change in numbers is without any authority from the city council. In 1884 an ordinance was passed numbering the houses on the Philadelphia system, which allows 100 to the block, beginning at a central point and numbering in four directions. When the subject of numbering was brought up in the council two months ago, in anticipation of free delivery, the council appointed a special committee composed of Messrs. Wall, Dalton and Tibbs to attend to the matter. This committee after careful consideration, and after correspondence with government officials in Washington and Cincinnati, to satisfy themselves that the present plan was the "Philadelphia system," decided to make no change.

About 600 numbers are already up in the city and capable canvassers have measured the lots and assigned the proper numbers to unnumbered houses. This work has been done under the proper authority and the property owners and city officials have been or will be supplied with duplicate numbers. The numbers are in accordance with an ordinance and can only be changed by an ordinance repealing the existing one.

In order that the public may fully understand the worthlessness of any publication using different numbers, we herewith give an official statement from Councilman Wall, of the numbering committee:

TO PROPERTY OWNERS.

The numbering of houses being done by representatives of Meacham's Municipal Directory, is by the authority of the city council.

Any numbering different from this is without authority.

J. T. WALL,

Ch'n. Special Committee.

City Taxes Due.

City taxes for 1898 are now due and in my hands for collection.

WHITSITT'S SUCCESSOR.

Dr. E. Y. Mullens, of Boston, Chosen President.

Rev. Dr. E. Y. Mullens, of the Newton Center Baptist church, Boston, was on Thursday, unanimously elected President of the Baptist Theological Seminary of Louisville.

Dr. E. Y. Mullens is forty-two years of age. He was born in Texas and was employed as a telegraph operator in various parts of the State till 1885, when he decided to prepare for the ministry. He matriculated in the seminary. On graduating with distinction he was called to the Baptist church at Harrodsburg. From there he went to Baltimore and later went to Richmond, Va., to act as Associate Secretary of the Foreign Mission Board. From there he went to the First Baptist church of Newton Center, Mass., where he now is.

While pastor of the Harrodsburg church he married Miss May Hawley, of this city. His wife has made valued contributions to Baptist literature of the day. The selection of Dr. Mullens will meet almost universal favor in local Baptist circles.

LEONARD-CABANNE.

Miss Minnie Leonard Married at Metropolis to J. S. Cabanne.

In spite of the objections of Banker Leonard, of Eddyville, to the marriage of his daughter, Miss Minnie, to Mr. J. S. Cabanne, of St. Louis, those determined young lovers were married at Metropolis this morning, and are now probably enroute to the home of Mr. Cabanne in St. Louis.

A telegram to the News this afternoon conveyed intelligence of the marriage, but no details of the third and successful elopement were given.

Miss Leonard had been the guest in this city of Miss Elizabeth Sinnott, but Mr. Cabanne's presence in the city was not known.

This young couple made two sensational but unsuccessful attempts to get married a few months ago at Indianapolis and Louisville.—Paducah News June 26.

HARD ON DRUMMERS.

Trusts Have Left 35,000 of Them Unemployed.

Albany, N. Y., July 1.—President Dow in his annual address to the Commercial Travelers' Association in convention here dwelt on the effect of trusts upon commercial travelers and what the commercial travelers should do under the circumstances. He declared that he had obtained from the best possible and most reliable sources that 35,000 commercial travelers had been thrown out of work through trusts and that 25,000 had had their salaries reduced. One in every ten was affected.

Ray E. Owsley, After Passing West Point Examination, Resigns.

Elizabethtown, Ky., June 30.—Ray E. Owsley, of White Mills, who was recommended by Congressman D. H. Smith as a cadet from the Fourth district to West Point academy, and who recently passed the required examination there and received the appointment, has resigned and returned home. John Carter Montgomery, son of Judge James Montgomery, of this place, who was recommended by Mr. Smith as the alternate, will take the examination in September. Young

5,000 YEARS OLD.

Ears of Corn Found in Pottery by Archaeologists, Planted and Grew to Giant Maize.

Corn that has remained hidden for thousands of years in the heart of an Arkansas mountain, and which is declared by those who have examined it to be not less than 5,000 years old, has been discovered and planted, and the corn that has been raised from the plant is in the possession of the original owner of the recovered cereal, George Barnum, of Columbus, Neb. Some time ago a relative of Mr. Barnum, while wandering in a mountain cave near his home, found some curious and ancient pottery. This pottery was submitted to archaeological experts, who declared that it was certainly 5,000 years old. The most interesting part of the find was that in one of the jars, hermetically sealed, several ears of corn were found. It occurred to the finder of the pottery that it would be interesting to experiment with this corn, although no one entertained the hope that after such a lapse of time it could be made to grow. Mr. Barnum planted it in a corner of his farm last June, and the result has been marvelous.

The corn proved to be giant maize. In spite of the dry and unfavorable season it grew to a height of fifteen feet, the stalks measuring in circumference seven inches, with leaves five feet long. This was all the more surprising because other grain grow from modern seed and planted near to that found in the cave shriveled and perished under the heat of the sun. The grains of the corn are in all respects like other corn, except that they are much larger, and are in color dark chocolate.

Mr. Barnum is being besieged by his former acquaintances with requests for seeds. One of these curious ones, John E. Burton, of Milwaukee, Wis., has made a personal investigation of the story of the discovery of the corn, and, satisfied that it is perfectly genuine, he has obtained a supply of the seeds from Mr. Barnum, and will begin experiments on a farm owned by him. A great deal of interest has been awakened in the matter through the West, and others will try to grow plants from the prehistoric seed, so that there is no danger of the corn relapsing into its former out-of-the-world state.—Post.

THE LOVE BIRDS.

A Good Joke Told on a Young Married Couple.

New York Commercial Advertiser: "We tried to keep the railway carriage to ourselves from Liverpool to London," writes a girl, who can appreciate a joke on herself, even when on her wedding tour. "The steamer was so crowded we really had not a moment to ourselves. At Busby, I think it was the guard opened the door, and in spite of Fred's scowls, lifted a small girl into our compartment, making a lot of apologies about having no place else to put her. She was a real little tow-headed English girl of about seven and she sat down on the edge of the seat and stared about her. 'What is the matter, Miss Victoria?' asked Fred, who is the most good natured man in the world. 'I don't see the birds,' said the small girl, plaintively. Birds? 'What birds?' asked Fred. 'When I came from my other train, your guard said to my guard, 'Shove her in along with the love birds.' Where are they?"

How often these words are on our lips. They express to the uttermost the nerve racked condition of the body, which makes life a daily martyrdom.

If this condition had come suddenly it would have been unbearable. But the transition was gradual. A little more strain each day on the nerves. A little more drain each day of the vitality. Any woman would be glad to be rid of such a condition. Every woman would be glad to be rid of such a condition. Every woman would be glad to be rid of such a condition.

Sick women suffering from unpleasant drains, irregularities, bearing down pains, inflammation and ulceration are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., by letter free of charge. Every letter is guarded as a sacred confession. All letters are promptly answered and mailed in private envelopes without printing of any kind upon them.

"Favorite Prescription" is the full-blown temperance medicine, containing neither alcohol, opium, or other narcotic in any form. Accept no substitute.

Mrs. Henrietta of Madison, Stark Co., Ohio, writes: "I had been troubled with constipation and female weakness and doctored with different physicians, none of whom seemed to help me. I saw one of your advertisements, and I thought I would try your medicine. I did so and with good result. Took one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and two of his Golden Syrup of Sassafras, and I am cured of my troubles. Give it to a friend who gives them. It is a world of good to those who give them."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a perfect cure for constipation.

This is without question the most pleasant trip that could be taken from this section, for a summer jaunt, and the people are never slow to avail themselves of the opportunity to go. The elegant manner in which these personally conducted Seashore specials are operated has so impressed the people with their grandness that the mere announcement of another is always hailed with delight.
